

Title: Zora Neale Hurston

Type:	Interstitial/Promo
Subject(s):	TGAR Authors, TGAR Hometown Story
Project Contact:	Name: Jennifer Cook Company: WUCF Email: Jennifer.cook@wucftv.org
Original Broadcast/Publish Date:	09/12/2018
Runtime:	00:05:14
Short Description:	Zora Neale Hurston, "Their Eyes Were Watching God" and her life in Eatonville
Long Description:	Famed author and global icon Zora Neale Hurston grew up in Eatonville, Florida, one of the first self-governing all-black towns in the United States. The town outside of Orlando helped shaped Hurston who went on to write "Their Eyes Were Watching God." The book is listed among the top 100 listed on The Great American Read, a national campaign presented by PBS.
Production Credits:	Jon Busdeker - Producer Brian Kelly - Sound
Rights Information
Media Rights:	All manner and media
Territory (*Please note: all internet exploitation of this program must be geo-limited to the specified territory):	Worldwide
Term:	In perpetuity
Releases:	Unlimited
Editing Allowed?:	No
Digital Classroom Rights?:	Yes
Promotional Use:	No
Lower Thirds:	Jill Jones, PhD - Rollins College, Professor of English Eddie Cole - Mayor of Eatonville, Zora's hometown Anna Lillios, PhD - University of Central Florida, Professor of English N.Y. Nathiri - Preserve Eatonville Committee, Executive Director
Sensitive Material:	N/A
Special Instructions:	N/A
File Clean of Graphics:	No
Embed Code:	No